Wills Services: Advice

Advice Consultation

Just want to know more so you can do it yourself?

There are many risks in writing your Will by yourself or producing a 'DIY' Will at home. Whilst we warn against this, there is nothing to stop you from doing this.

All we can do is help you.

We offer a personalised, 1-hour, online 'Advice Consultation' service to help you gain more understanding on how to write your own Will above and beyond what any article or free guide can offer you.

We then send you a guide, outlining all the advice and guidance explained in the meeting.

Learn how to make your Will online now for just £75.

Check My Will

Already have a Will but not sure what it says?

Many Will writers use outdated or unnecessarily long precedents when writing Wills. This can create a range of problems.

In most cases, this renders the Will difficult to read or understand. In the worst cases, it changes the meaning of the Will clause, meaning the Will does not do what you want or expect.

We are passionate about helping and teaching.

In this service, you send us a copy of your Will; we review your Will and send you a guide, explaining the meaning and effect of each clause.

You then have more understanding and confidence about whether your Will is satisfactory or you need a new one.

Learn what your Will says now for just £75.

Letters of Wishes

Once a grant of representation is obtained, the Will becomes a public document.

On the other hand, a letter of wishes remains confidential to your executors, trustees or family members.

A letter of wishes accompanies your Will and gives guidance on specific matters, such as how you wish your children, pets or property to be treated.

Whilst they are not legally binding, letters of wishes are still useful in providing executors with guidance, especially where they are able to exercise discretion.

You can get that extra peace of mind and reassurance that your wishes will be clearly passed on with a letter of wishes for just £75.

Land Ownership Services

For most people, their land is their most valuable asset. So, it is fundamental that it is dealt with properly in your Will.

For this reason, we offer two important services in this respect.

It is commonplace for people to co-own their property but not know whether they own the property as joint tenants or tenants in common.

The difference is fundamental if you wish to pass your property to specific people.

We can conduct a search on the Land Registry for just £5 so you have certainty and clarity.

When dealing with land in your Will, you will come across the terms 'joint tenants' and 'tenants in common'.

The important distinction is that joint tenants cannot pass their rights in a property, because the surviving joint owners continue to own the property together.

To prevent this, we can sever your joint tenancy for just £150 so you can pass your rights in the property to whoever you wish.

Proving Mental Capacity

Testamentary capacity is the legal term describing a person's legal and mental ability to make or alter a valid Will.

Without testamentary capacity at the time the Will is executed, the Will is invalid.

All our online and telephone services are designed to show you had testamentary capacity at the time of making your Will.

However, there can sometimes be circumstances which give rise to doubts over whether someone has the requisite level of capacity.

We work with an experienced medical practitioners and specialist capacity assessors who can meet with you and provide a report on your capacity.

Please get in touch with us to discuss this, if this is a concern for you, and we will be more than happy to help.
